From energy-efficient urban pads to off-the-grid sanctuaries, Kerridwen Green aims to showcase low carbon, toxic-free spaces that prioritise natural and organic materials, bioconstruction, and passive home design. This commitment to sustainability has already earned them the Luxury Lifestyle Awards' Sustainability Award shortly after their website launch in late 2023.

Award-Winning Properties and International Collaborations:

Kerridwen Green boasts already acclaimed listings in Spain and Andorra, featuring collaborations with renowned architects like Jean Nouvel and OHLAB Studio. Their growing portfolio will curate stunning properties that blend luxury with environmental responsibility from around the globe.

Spreading Sustainability Knowledge:

The firm's dedication extends beyond luxury living. Their "Living Green Blog" serves as an informative hub, offering insights, tips, and trends on sustainable living, soon to be featuring expert interviews and Q&As.

A Vision for a Greener Future:

The objective is clear: provide influential, environmentally conscious clients with opportunities to acquire, construct, renovate, decorate, or sell upscale sustainable properties, all without compromising on comfort, style, or luxury.

The aspiration? Cultivate a ripple effect within the affluent community, enlightening influencers and their extended network—families, colleagues, peers, and followers—encouraging them to embark on a journey towards sustainability, starting right at the heart of our carbon emissions, waste management, and daily consumer choices: our homes.

"At Kerridwen Green, we believe in redefining luxury living by integrating sustainability into every aspect of real estate," says founder and CEO Alexandra Nicolau. "Our aim is to market and create homes that inspire and contribute to a healthier planet for all."
